displayed a steamer tone that the model desired he distant deliveries became heavier as trading progressed causing a still further decline in prices, the market closing weak.

Commission houses and the pit traders were free sellers of corn., owing to the continuance of favorable crop conditions. As a result of this pressure a weak tone prevailed. Prices steadily declined the decline in the day, the market being bearishly affected by severe slumps in the price of cash corn at Southwestern markets. The close was weak, with July down like.

Renewed liquidation by tired holders caused a fresh slump in the price of oats, July being especially weak. Later, on buying by shorts, July and vanced to 45%.

Provisions were moderately firm at the start, owners and all example the destine in prices, the market being a still further decline in prices, the market closing weak.
